today in brief

Interest rates will remain high

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns today ruled out any slackening of current high interest rates until "the fires of inflation burn themselves out."

Burns, in a strong defense of federal reserve monetary policy, said that tight money and credit is necessary along with a reduction of federal spending and other measures to bring the country out of its double digit inflation.

'Lindy' better

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pioneer aviator Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., 72, first man to cross the Atlantic alone in an airplane, was reported in good condition today in Columbia Presbyterian Hospital, where he was admitted one week ago.

Lindbergh reportedly is suffering from influenza and was forced to cancel a scheduled appearance Sunday at the Midwestern Governor's Conference in Minneapolis because of his illness.

Berlin slowdown stalls talks

WASHINGTON (New York Times) — The United States has suspended negotiations with East Germany on establishing diplomatic relations because of East German interference with traffic on the highway access routes to West Berlin.

Robert Anderson, the State Department spokesman, said there had been "some sort of a slow down" on some of the highways between West Germany and West Berlin since last Friday because of identity checks on West German travelers by East German border guards.

Singer chokes

LONDON (UPI) — An autopsy showed today that American singer Mama Cass, 33, did not die of a heart attack but probably choked to death on a ham sandwich she was eating while propped up in bed watching television.

Further laboratory tests were ordered to make sure.

An inquest into the death, mandatory when it is not from natural causes, will open at Westminster Coroner's Court Wednesday.

Franco leaves hospital

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco left a Madrid hospital today on the arms of two doctors for what medical sources said could be a long convalescence from a circulatory ailment.

The 81-year-old ruler placed the power of Spain in the hands of Prince Juan Carlos, his hand picked heir, two weeks ago when his condition was listed as serious.

Utility sued

CHICAGO (UPI) — Barbara Hirsch, an attorney representing a competitor of Illinois Bell Telephone Co., says that Illinois Bell left her name out of a million telephone books in retaliation for her work.

Claiming harassment, Miss Hirsch is suing Illinois Bell for $750,000. She represents Private Tele-Communications, Inc., a firm which sells and leases telephone equipment.

Stein lists 2 economic weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert Stein, outgoing chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said today the main weapons in the fight against rising inflation must continue to be limiting both the money supply and government spending.

In testimony before Congress' Joint Economic Committee, Stein said the inflation battle may be longer and harder than expected, partly because of what he said was failure of everyone to appreciate the intensity that tends to feed on itself.

Dean sentencing slated Friday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III, the former White House counsel who became President Nixon's chief accuser and a key figure in the impeachment inquiry, will be sentenced Friday for his part in the Watergate cover-up.

A spokesman for the U.S. District Court announced today that Judge John J. Sirica would impose sentence on the 34-year-old Dean, who pleaded guilty Oct. 19 to a single count of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

He could receive as much as five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

RESCUE WORKERS retrieve the body of a victim from an alpine ravine near Salzburg, Austria, Monday, after a bridge over the chasm collapsed. Twenty-four West German school children plunged into the ravine and a river below. Five girls were killed, 19 others injured, including bridge guards, were injured and 1 children were missing (UPI).

Hansen fund data filed

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho secretary of state's office said Monday that congressional candidate George Hansen had filed all required campaign reports, but that three were filed after the deadline.

However, Jerry Hill, chief deputy secretary of state, said both personal candidate reports and political committee reports had been filed.

Mrs. R. L. Heath, Idaho Falls, had charged in a formal complaint sent to the U.S. House of Representatives clerk that 198 personal reports were missing and committee reports were late.

Hill said three Hansen reports were filed late: a statement of organizational structure required when the political committee was organized was not filed until July 18.

Personal campaign reports due June 10 were not filed until July 18.

and political committee reports due June 10 were not filed until July 18.

Hansen said that organizational problems on the committee had delayed its formation until the middle of June. He said he then resigned campaign report forms which were delayed in the mail.

Hansen said another set of reports also had been filed July 18, ahead of the July 22 deadline.

He said he filed his pre-primary report Tuesday, ahead of schedule.

Power reduced

NEW YORK (UPI) — The head of the Episcopal Church said today the first women priests to be ordained in the history of the ministry will not be allowed to work as priests because the four bishops who conducted the ceremony exceeded their authority.

The Rev. John M. Allen, presiding bishop of the 3.1 million member church, said in a statement the ordination of the 11 women in Philadelphia Monday "was contrary to the constitution and canons of the Episcopal Church."

"Any bishops involved in such a service have exceeded their authority, and have not acted for the whole church, as is the norm in traditions."

"Accordingly the ordinations are irregular and may be found invalid. Under the canons, diocesan bishops are bound to restrict any deacons receiving such ordination from exercising priestly functions."

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. may turn to nuclear energy — not coal — for its proposed southern Idaho plant, company chairman Albert Carlsen, said today.

Last week Idaho Power announced its evaluation of sites near Bliss, Mountain Home and Boise for location of a huge coal-fired generating plant. The announcement had not mentioned nuclear power.

"We need sites regardless of what kind of a plant we build," Carlsen told the Times News. He then said the plant could be nuclear, but added that it is too early to say anything certain.

Carlsen said that in addition to sponsoring an environmental impact study for coal-fired plant

'Stonewall' under fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee today debated a third impeachment article introduced by a Republican, which alleges that President Nixon "stonewalled" the panel by defying subpoenas for 147 White House tapes.

The article offered by Rep. Robert McClell, R-Ill., was the first impeachment proposal before the panel to be proposed by a GOP member.

"The prime example of stonewalling is right here," McClell said in opening debate. "If we allow the President to do this we are telling future presidents what they can provide in their own impeachments. I hope we don't have any more impeachments but in case we did, the precedents we establish here will be effective then, so it not only affects this president, but future presidents."

One of the President's staunchest defenders on the committee, Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., said that to impeach Nixon for not turning over evidence would be inconsistent with the panel's previous votes approving two articles based on the evidence.

McClell pointed out that the four subpoenas passed the committee with the "overwhelming and bipartisan support" of 33 or 34 of the panel's 38 members.

"We wanted to get all the evidence, that's something we had very little disagreement on," he said.

"The President told us he wanted to provide cooperation with the committee," he said. "Where is that full cooperation?"

In opposing the article, Wiggins said: "The committee viewed the evidence and you found it overwhelming and now you seek to impeach him because he didn't give you the evidence you needed to do the job," he said. "Those who voted for the first two articles cannot have their cake and eat it too — this article is inconsistent. By your earlier votes you said the additional evidence was not necessary."

While the committee debate was in progress, several House Republicans circulated a so-called "Free Plan," calling for Nixon to resign. The Republicans to vote in mass for impeachment on the basis it would speed a Senate trial and allow his case to get a full hearing in a courtlike proceeding.

But Rep. Lou Frey, a moderate Florida Republican after whom the plan was named, quickly disavowed the proposal, stating it seemed logical to him five months ago when he first proposed it but it simply is "much too late for this kind of an approach now."

"There was some validity to it then," Frey said, "but now it's taken so long that the things I was worried about happening have happened. From my standpoint, it doesn't make sense now."

Rep. Harold Freilich, R-Wis., who voted for the two previous impeachment articles, opposed this one. He said: "The committee should have gone to the courts to see what the law is, adding that Nixon 'used the courts all the way up.'"

Rep. Wm. Thornton, D-Ark., proposed an amendment to the article, which was later adopted on a 24-14 vote, that the material Nixon

Misuses of power charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee today charged President Nixon with belittling democracy through wiretaps, break-ins and tax harassment, but called again for his impeachment.

By a vote of 23-10 — with one more Republican joining the majority — the committee accused Nixon Monday night of repeatedly violating his oath, his duty and the rights of ordinary citizens in areas other than Watergate.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald R. Warren gave the same response to Monday's committee vote as the White House had made to the first article of impeachment, voted Saturday. "We're confident the facts do not support the article and we're confident the House will assess the facts and not vote on impeachment."

Monday's seven-hour debate was embittered with Republicans challenging the quality of the evidence rather than defending Nixon against every accusation of wrongful behavior.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., said Nixon was being punished "vicariously" for the acts of his associates.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Ill., said the country had forgotten the war, the riots and the disorders that prevailed when Nixon authorized warrantless wiretaps of businessmen and government officials.

But Rep. William S. Cohen, D-Maine, recalling Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn's smuggled book about life in Russian political prisons, said Nixon had introduced the seeds of despotism into this country.

"What we are really saying is that all these activities raise the question of an American 'Gulag Archipelago,'" Cohen said.

'Live' hearing broadcasts limited

TWIN FALLS — Most Magic Valley residents won't be able to tune in to live television or radio coverage from local stations of the historic impeachment hearings until Wednesday.

The region's only television station, KMVT, has dropped full-time live broadcasting of the hearings, according to general manager Harold Hirtle. The station will air the proceedings live every third day, beginning Wednesday, when its primary home affiliate, American Broadcasting Co., takes its turn behind the cameras.

KMVT provided full-time coverage during the first four days of the hearings, but was "very important," Hirtle said.

But viewers now are tired of looking at it. They're tired of Watergate," Hirtle said.

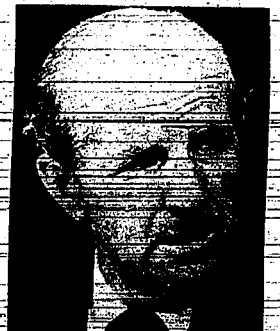

He said calls to the television station concerning its live-impeachment coverage have been "pro and con." But "more are against covering than for it," Hirtle said.

Thornton said the defiance of subpoenas deserves "our very serious reflection" but expressed concern that the article must be specifically defined in scope so as not to endanger the future balance of power between the three constitutionally designated branches of government.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., argued that Nixon's failure to respond to the subpoenas had hampered the committee's investigation into the 1971 milk price support decision. She said that the committee "in general had come to the conclusion that the evidence was not there" to support indictment, yet "any number of indictments have been handed down."

Several of the radio stations don't have national network affiliations. Most say they broadcast "summaries" of the proceedings provided by wire services or radio networks.

Spokesmen at all of the radio stations said they had received no calls urging live coverage.

KMVT is affiliated with all three national television networks, but depends on ABC for 85 per cent of its programming, according to Hirtle.

Bird shorts Burley power, dies

BURLEY — A startling cause a power outage this morning in Burley which turned electricity off in about two-thirds of the town.

Mayor Charles (Chuck) Shaduck said the bird had somehow entered the east Burley substation and caused a malfunction of the insulators.

The outage occurred about 9:30 a.m. and the power was restored about 9:45.

Shaduck said "everything north of 16th Street" and a good portion of the southwest corner" had no power during the outage.

He said the substitution would have to be shut down for about an hour during a period of low usage to allow for repair of the insulators.

Most of the downtown area, the Ponderosa and most industry in Burley were shut down during the outage.

"The bird did not hurt anyone,"

Nuclear energy may fuel S. Idaho power plant

In southern Idaho, the company has commissioned a study on the feasibility of a nuclear plant. The study is not yet complete, he said.

Idaho Power earlier announced that it could start building a coal-fired generating plant as early as 1975. The plant would produce one million kilowatts by 1975 and might be doubled in size to two million kilowatts capacity within the decade.

Idaho's total output of two noxious pollutants would more than double if the proposed coal-fired operation produced as much waste as projected for the sister-Jim Bridger plant being built in Wyoming.

The plant would produce as much smog-causing nitrogen oxide as 94,000 cars and more than 11 times as much sulfur dioxide as produced by the Simplot phosphate fertilizer plant in Pocatello, the Times-News reported Sunday through a comparison of company projections of the Wyoming plant's pollution output with state and federal data.

Also, unlike windy Wyoming, weather inversions in southern Idaho would tend to trap the pollutants especially during fall and early winter, according to weather officials.

"It was a very, very irresponsible article. It was totally inaccurate in many areas," Carlsen said regarding the findings.

He said the southern Idaho plant might release pollution at a different rate from the Wyoming plant because of being located at a different altitude and having different site boilers.

Idaho Power announced its intentions of building a coal-fired plant because it seemed "the most feasible at this particular time," Carlsen said.

But the comparative feasibility has not been determined definitely. Carlsen said studies on the plant possibilities would not be ready for another six to eight months.

"We will have to go through any number of regulatory agencies" before a generating plant can be built, he said. Public hearing will be held "long before" any building takes place, he added.

Carlsen said he does not know how early Idaho Power may begin building its southern Idaho plant.

Dog show featured at Twin Falls county fair

By MARJORIE LIERMAN

Each dog entering the fair must be accompanied by an official health certificate

Issued by a veterinarian stating it has had its proper shots. Sale of dogs will be permitted provided exhibits are kept complete.

The building will be closed at 10 p.m. each day. Exhibitors desiring to take their dogs home at night may do so by making arrangements with the superintendent of the building but the dogs must be back on the grounds by 5 a.m. the following day. All dogs, when entered, must remain all four days of the fair.

Judging will be open to the public and held outside the dog house. A trophy will be presented to each blue ribbon winner in the seven classes which include sporting dogs, non-sporting dogs, working dogs, hounds, terriers, toys and puppies.

'Defoleyate'

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Gary G. Gage of Clatsop figures it is time for big government to "back out."

To emphasize the point, Gage, a Republican, brought a goat with him Monday when he filed for the fifth congressional seat now held by Democrat Tom Foley.

"The goat's main purpose in the campaign will be to 'defoleyate' the fifth district," Gage said.

End sought on aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Monday introduced an amendment to the proposed Foreign Assistance Act of 1974, which would put an end to all military aid to South Korea.

Church said the administration proposes nearly $500 million in military aid to the South Korean government.

money which the senator said is badly needed for use within the United States.

Church asked in a Senate speech that the administration justify its massive military assistance to a government that has come to embrace the very totalitarianism against which our aid program is supposed to defend.

Hospital project starts

TWIN FALLS — Work is expected to begin this week on initial phases of construction of a loop road and additional parking space at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

County commissioners said the improvement, to be provided by revenue sharing money, will give the hospital two roadways instead of only one to provide a drive-through entrance and exit system.

The new roadway will be built just west of the hospital building and will necessitate removal of some lawn and possibly some trees but will utilize land between the hospital and canyon.

A meandering type walk will be constructed from the additional parking spaces to the hospital building, up a slight incline. New landscaping will be provided at the west part of the grounds to include the parking and roadway.

Work this week will consist of "scalping," the removal of grass and other preliminary work. William Channey, commission chairman, said this will be done as a "piece work" project to get ready for the construction which will be handled under contract. No bids have been called as yet for the work.

About $5,000 has been spent to provide parking space in front of the old nurses home just east of the hospital. Several other smaller improvements are also planned to streets and parking areas.

TF man facing trial in death

TWIN FALLS — Jerome Cree, 43, Twin Falls, has been bound over to Fifth District Court on a reduced charge of second degree murder in the death May 18 of Jerry Parrott, 39, Twin Falls.

Cree had been charged with first degree murder in the Parrott death and with two counts of attempted murder involving two other persons in a home at the time a fire, allegedly started by Cree, burned the building.

Magistrate Court Judge Daniel Meehl reduced the first degree murder charge to second degree and ordered Cree to appear in district court for further action.

He dismissed the attempted murder charge involving Pearl Tipton, owner of the home on Second Avenue West where the fire occurred May 18. Mrs. Tipton escaped injury.

The second attempted murder charge was taken under advisement by the judge. This involved the alleged attempted murder of Priscilla Machipness, 29, Twin Falls, who was in the house at the time and who suffered severe burns.

The complaint against Cree charges he started the fire in the house in an attempt to burn the occupants. Cree also suffered burns and is still under the "care" of a physician although presently confined to the county jail. He had been in custody at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital since the fire until recently.

Parrott died in the burning frame building before firemen could bring the flames under control and reach him.

Action by Judge Meehl followed a preliminary hearing in magistrate court which ended late Friday.

Hansen man sentenced on burglary

TWIN FALLS — Gary Shatto, 26, Hansen, was given a 15 years maximum sentence to the Idaho State Penitentiary Friday when he appeared before Judge Theron Ward, Fifth Judicial District.

Shatto had entered a plea of guilty to first degree burglary. He was charged with the Feb. 23 burglary of a storage room in the Rex Arms apartments in Twin Falls.

TF youth predicts victory

TWIN FALLS — Darryl Gled, Twin Falls, chairman of a local Youth for George Hansen group, predicted victory "locally and through the district" for the congressional hopeful.

Gled said the key to a victory for Hansen is that voters and students alike can identify with George Hansen's feeling about the issues.

Gled will be entering Twin Falls High School this fall from Henry where he was student body president and held positions of safety and quarterback on the football team.

Holve likes restrictions on mining

TWIN FALLS — Ralph H. Holve, Democrat candidate of US Congress from the second congressional district, favors action taken by Congress placing restrictions on strip mining.

Holve stated that land used for strip mining if properly replanted after the mining process, can be restored and rendered useful for years to come.

"I do not believe that it is a question of whether or not to strip mine, but rather a question of how the land is to be used and replanted once the extraction process has been completed," Holve said.

Don't forget the TF fair

Lost Evel Knievel's spectacular leap of the Snake River Canyon occupy all the attention, we should remind people again that there will be another major public event during that first week in September.

The Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo may well draw as many people as does Evel's canyon leap. And it will be quite a show, with something for everybody.

People who like to see other people soar through the air will have plenty of opportunity at the nightly rodeo. In addition, there will be countless agricultural events, including a major Hereford show and the annual fitting and showing by local 4-Hers.

The famed Austrian Lipizzan horses will perform. For many people of more sedentary ways, there will be a large number of exhibits in which local individuals and organizations display their talent. The fair includes its own art galleries, for both adults and school children and countless canvas dining halls where friends serve friends.

It's an event well worth looking forward to, an integral part of life in Magic Valley.

It will be quite a week, including Evel and the fair.

WASHINGTON — I've got to stop going to court, said a man who was arrested last night. They'll find me running up and down the streets bowling like a dog.

That almost happened the other night during a discussion of the horrifying interstate during which two men and a woman took over the cockpit of the U.S. District Court house and held seven hostages for 68 hours while they tried to persuade authorities to fly them out of the country. An eighth hostage, a deputy U.S. marshal, was released on a promise of good will 11 hours after the takeover.

"Well, you've got to give those two guys a lot of credit for one thing," remarked a State Department spokesman. "They didn't hurt anybody."

They didn't hurt anybody. That guy should have been one of the hostages. A hostage, for instance, like Mrs. Delora Collins, a Justice Department secretary, who was investigating an employment discrimination complaint when Frank Gorham Jr. and Robert N. Jones took over the cellblock. If Mrs. Collins wasn't hurt, the psychiatric profession should be indicted en masse for posing as experts on the human psyche.

When Mrs. Collins, mother of two small children, went to bed after her release she was still terrified. Her experience was still with her. "I was too scared to shut my eyes," she told the Washington Post. "Throughout the night I would wake up. She had three nightmares, and at one point she cried out in her sleep: 'Don't! Don't! Don't!'"

Hostages who escaped through use of a smuggled-in elevator key were ill on the verge of physical collapse when they emerged into freedom — even a couple of tough and heroic marshals, Calvin Moulton and William Colquitt. If Gorham and Jones didn't hurt anybody, then the kidnapping laws are an infringement on the constitutional guarantee of the right of free association.

It is pretty sick. There are people in this rural town who have even made heroes of two convicts who repeatedly threatened to do violence to their hostages unless their demands were met. The rationale, if a word can be outrageously misused, is that, after all, Gorham and Jones did not hurt or physically maim any of their captives.

Well God knows that is good, and I am thankful to them. I am grateful to Gorham and Jones for not adding murder or physical abuse to their crimes.

Yes, yes, I think the fact all the hostages escaped with their lives and physically undamaged should be written on the credit side of the law books' records. They were not as vicious as they could have been. But I'm appalled that the word heroes should be applied to two men who nevertheless made it plain to their captives that the next minute could be their last.

Indeed, in a legitimate sense, a mental ordeal such as the hostages suffered is a close second to violent death. I don't know how long Delora Collins will suffer from nightmares. But surely she and the other hostages, including the brave and ingenious Moulton and Colquitt, will live through the horror of their captivity often before time moves in with its slow, healing forgetfulness.

They didn't hurt anybody. That's telling the jury to deliver its verdict before it's heard all the evidence. And the evidence won't be all in for months, or even years.

Standards placed high

(c) Chicago Daily News
 WASHINGTON — The occasion is piled high with difficulty, said Abraham Lincoln in his second annual message to Congress in 1862, "and we must rise with the occasion."

The House Judiciary Committee got itself up pretty good for the occasion of its set-piece phase of the impeachment process. Even some members voiced surprise. The fear was that with the television cameras turned on, many would be tempted to escape their customary obscurity by showboating.

Instead, they came on with dignity, in the main, as if to demonstrate that the White House cries of "kangaroo court" and "lynch mob" were the strident calumnies of a propaganda ministry. Members of the House don't get on TV as much as Senators, so the studied modesty of the small, fourishes that make up the room theater, the lining that arrests attention, were often missing.

Chairman Peter Rodino, who in his youth wrote a novel that was just when his family moved and who has tried his hand at poetry, opened the unique show with a speech that caught the spirit of the occasion. Even the elitist critics who scoff at a Newark Congressman spouting Justitia Magna Carta and the Fraternity of the Constitution, admitted they were moved by his speech.

Rep. Charles Wiggins, who represents Richard Nixon's old district in California, measured up to advance notices of being one of the ablest lawyers on the panel. He was not the heavy-duty, small, fourishes that make up the room through as a man of civility who made what many of his colleagues judge to be a thin case sound substantial.

Rep. Charles Wiggins, who represents Richard Nixon's old district in California, measured up to advance notices of being one of the ablest lawyers on the panel. He was not the heavy-duty, small, fourishes that make up the room through as a man of civility who made what many of his colleagues judge to be a thin case sound substantial.

Another Californian, Democrat Jerome Waldie, also spoke without notes, matching Wiggins' style and impact. He was not the heavy-duty, small, fourishes that make up the room through as a man of civility who made what many of his colleagues judge to be a thin case sound substantial.

Rep. Robert Kastenberger also asked himself a question: If Lyndon B. Johnson or John F. Kennedy had been guilty of the crimes charged against President Nixon, would he, a Democrat, vote to impeach them? His answer was a soft but firm yes.

And the targets of White House attacks for their early calls for the President's impeachment — Michigan's John Conyers and Massachusetts' Father Drinan — how did they come on? Stern but restrained, understanding their case for maximum effect. Maryland's Larry Hogan and Virginia's Caldwell Butler, two Republicans on whom the White House had counted, made their case for impeachment with a grave haste that concealed a distance for what they had to do. Texas' Barbara Jordan must have caused pride in country to quicken in the breast of every nation in the land.

These men and women had run their eyeballs ragged in searching for evidence to support their arguments. And they made the most of their moment in the limelight, realizing that, as Alabama's Walter Flowers put it with grace and wit, they shall soon fade back into the anonymity whence they came. They may yet descend into squabbling.

But the guess is that they know the die is cast. The House, often ignored on merit, cannot escape the attention imposed on it by the impeachment clause. Its Judiciary committee has given it a standard of conduct that does it proud.

Sir Walter Scott wrote that "A lawyer without history or literature is a mechanic, a mere working mason; if he possesses some knowledge of these he may venture to call himself an architect." The Rodino panel has made a start toward rebuilding a gutted dream.

This is the summer to be 4 years old

Dear Heather: — Grandfather's meaning me, had his own birthday in the summer. I remember you saying Coolidge (ronce John W. Davis. It must have been a turbulent time in our Oklahoma household, for my father — that would have been your great grandfather — was supporting the Republican Candidate and your great-grandmother were voting for the Democrat Davis. Your great-grandfather, a Confederate captain, was down in Louisiana spinning in his grave. Now you are having your fourth birthday in the midst of presidential earthquakes. far more severe than those of 1924. I will tell you something: I do not remember me messing thing about Coolidge, Davis, LaFollette or for that matter, about the election of Herbert Hoover four years later. The first President I remember was Roosevelt, and the first political event I remember was Repeal. All this is over your head. — But I occurs to me that it is more of a blessing than a pity that you are likely to remember nothing at all about President Nixon: impeachment, and Watergate. If your memory is like mine, these events will wash over your recollection and leave no sediment behind. Yet, before when you read about Nixon, you will say "Well, after all, I was only four in the summer." It is a pretty good age to be in the summer of 1974.

The memories that we store up for you, and put away with your outgrown toys, are certain to be more pleasant than memories of a president at bay. If this past year has been a bad year for presidents, it has been a great year for little girls.

This birthday, your fourth birthday, will be your first at Hawthorn. Here you have your own room, with big windows looking out at the Blue Ridge Mountains; and you have 500 acres, more or less, to run off your wilds in. The old brick house was built about 1812, high on a hill that looks to everywhere. A very long time after your grandfather bought the property and made it beautiful again. Now you are growing up in the hills and fields and ponds of Hawthorn, and these are the things you may remember:

You may remember an evening in June, when you and your cousin Michael chased fireflies on the lawn. Michael caught all the fireflies; but he was a Southern gentleman. He let you put them in the Mason jar. You ran to and fro under the great maples, until it got too dark to see, and then you let all the fireflies free "so they could go back home to their mummies and go to bed."

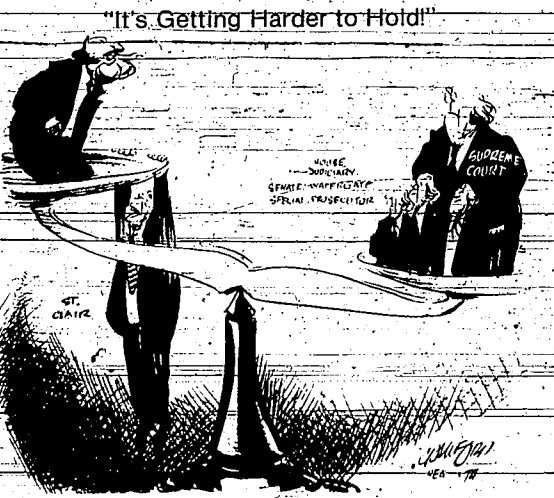

You may remember fishing with your father, sitting still in the canoe, not wigglng even a little bit, and most difficult of all, not even taking. You may remember the dark, ground-iridescent fish, wet and shining; and the summer ducks that landed on the water, and the frogs that croaked by the banks.

You may remember the discovery of secret places on the farm — the cool sweet-sour smell of the barn, the empty horse stalls, the machine shop and tool shed, the hatches and pens where Grandfather Stone once raised pheasants and quail. You may remember squinting in the draw of the cowshed, your cherry-blue eyes big with amazement, watching a cow being milked.

Or perhaps we will remember all these things for you, and hold the memories in the warming ovens of our hearts. Heather learning to swim. Heather learning to "take" tennis. Heather holding a bottle for baby brother Douglas. Heather saying "good night!" (twenty times an hour).

All this is Heather at four, and all this, my love, is happier to remember than to remember this summer as the summer they impeached Richard Nixon.

Leave of absence assures Ziegler of old job

WASHINGTON — The question everyone in Washington is asking this week is: If for some reason President Nixon has to leave office, will Ron Ziegler be able to get his job back at Disneyland?

The consensus among Ziegler-watchers is that he will. One who asked not to be mentioned by name because he is still in relatives in Orange County, Calif., told me, "I've been watching Ziegler now for five years, and as far as I'm concerned he never left Disneyland. The virtues that made him one of the best — and best — Disneyland managers are going off for him as a spokesman for the President of the United States."

"But wouldn't the Disney people be hesitant about rehiring someone who worked in the White House?"

The Ziegler-watcher shook his head. "Ron was never involved with Watergate. He's clean as a whistle."

President depends more on Ziegler than any other person in his administration?"

"Why is that?"

"Because Ron still believes everything the President tells him."

"You mean Ziegler's not putting us on when he says now that we are all the facts the only conclusion we can arrive at is that the President knew nothing about the coverup?"

"And where do you think he learned that?" my friend asked.

"Disneyland?"

"Where else?"

"So you think no matter what happens to President Nixon, Ziegler won't have to worry about a job?"

"I know it," my friend replied.

"How can you be so sure?"

"No one knows this, but Ziegler never quit his job at Disneyland. He just took a leave of absence."

Report charges US Army, Air Force preparing to fight wrong European war

(C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — The United States Army and Air Force in Europe are prepared to fight the wrong war in the wrong place, and in the air, with the wrong doctrine, according to two defense specialists.

Col. Richard D. Lawrence and Jeffrey Record argue that American forces in Western Germany are not stationed along the main invasion routes and are organized for a long war against Soviet armies, which are geared for a high-velocity offensive aimed at overrunning Western Europe before American and other Atlantic Treaty Organization reserves can be mobilized.

These controversial conclusions, and some equally controversial proposals for restructuring the forces, are presented in a staff paper of the Brookings Institution. The paper is expected to fuel the debate within the services over America's NATO posture.

They say the proposed measures would result in a reduction in troop levels of 22,000 men and mean savings in the annual budget of $1.16 billion and in the balance of payments of $215 million, both in 1974 dollars.

The most drastic proposal for improving the contribution to European defense calls for a reorganized Army of eight full-strength active divisions compared with the present 13. Thirteen divisions of various mixes of active and reserve troops would be available from seven to 90 days after national mobilization.

Six divisions of two brigades each would be stationed in Europe. Their troop strength would be the equivalent of four divisions now. There are four and one-third divisions now in the Seventh Army.

The remaining brigade of be stationed in the United States, ready to join its parent unit by air by seven days after mobilization, thus rounding out a full six-division force.

The authors also propose improving preparation for meeting a Soviet-conventional attack through the following measures:

— Moving northward two divisions now in Southern Germany, to balance Soviet weight in the North German plain, which must experts consider the most likely axis of Russian attack.

— Raising the ratio of combat to support troops through a series of measures including more use of civilian — Repositioning supply lines and communications to run west to east through the Netherlands and Belgium rather than north to south, paralleling the East German frontier, as they now do.

— Insuring effective air support for ground forces by wholesale revision of Air Force tactical priorities and adjusting aircraft design in favor of ground support planes.

— Establishing a multinational logistics command in NATO.

While they accept the quantitative superiority of the Soviet and other Warsaw Pact forces arrayed against NATO's central front, the authors are "A forward, non-nuclear defense of Western Europe is not only feasible but also well within the capability of the conventional forces now currently available to NATO," they contend. The weaknesses lie not in force levels and weapons but in deployments and mobilization procedures, they say.

The origin of this military problem was political. When Germany was divided into occupation zones in the closing months of World War II, the United States was given Southern Germany. American forces have been stationed there ever since and, under NATO, are charged with the Hof Corridor, the main invasion routes to Frankfurt and Nuremberg from the East.

The paper's strictures against the Air Force's emphasis on achieving air supremacy as the first goal in war brought immediate replies from officers of that service.

Lawrence and Record argue that the Air Force, like the Army, is preparing for a long war with its emphasis on winning air superiority and winning air superiority and winning air superiority. But they argue that the tactical air force should be oriented toward providing a greater amount of immediate support for ground forces engaged in the short, fierce campaign they

A senior Air Force officer, told of this proposal, replied that the authors apparently did not understand that "unless we can win air superiority, we can't provide ground support, whether the war is long or short."

Replying to the suggestion that the Air Force shift procurement programs to favor ground-support aircraft, the officer said that the service planned to buy 730 A-10 Planes for close support work.

quite a few others. A suntan lotion, if it is one that contains ultraviolet, can help within limits, but your best course is to avoid the amount of sun that brings on the rash.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have flown in a plane only three times but the pain in my ears progressed each time when coming in for a landing. Is this a problem a lot of people have or do you think a visit to an ear specialist would be worthwhile? I do not have a hearing problem although I did have a number of ear infections as a child. — Mrs. E.S.

I used to be a much more common problem before the time of pressurized cabins — which means most of the commercial planes now. But some folks still have trouble.

The explanation is that the Eustachian tubes (tiny tubes running between the middle ear and throat) do not let air through rapidly enough to equalize pressure on either side of the ear drums. It could be that your ear infections as a child caused some scarring of the Eustachian tubes.

If your discomfort is severe, consult an ear specialist to see if he can open up the tubes a bit.

If the trouble is mild, then rely on the things people used to do before planes were pressurized: Chew gum and/or keep swallowing, or go through the procedure of making an imaginary but hard yawn.

Such gyrations often pop the Eustachian tubes open enough to take the pressure off your ear drums and stop the hurting.

LEADERSHIP IN AMERICA

Special Section: 200 Rising Leaders

Time just discovered what Idaho already knew.

...there remains a sense of unease, not only of giants having departed, but of more competence being all too scarce. While lack of leadership is everywhere felt and deplored, there are in America a great many leaders, both actual and potential... we are convinced that America has men and women who can assume leadership roles in the right circumstances and given the right spirit in the country."

That's what Time Magazine said about our Governor in their special edition.

That's what Time Magazine said of the need for leadership in America on July 16, 1974. Then they named our Governor as one of the people who could provide that kind of leadership.

Cecil D. Andrus, 42, Governor of Idaho, is a sturdily independent sort... an advocate of environmental issues... a man of modest means.

That's just one reason we support Cecil Andrus, and one reason we paid for this advertisement.

Idaho GOP candidates stressing confidence

By United Press International

Confidence in the nation's leadership and the economic system are being stressed by two Idaho Republican politicians as a means in curbing inflation.

Both congressman Orval Hansen and Jack Murphy, a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, touched on the subject during campaign appearances Monday.

Murphy said such confidence will be the ultimate solution to the current problems of the nation's money system.

"A basic confidence on the part of the American people in the rightness of the free enterprise system, coupled with the belief that we can do a good job of the job toward curing inflation," Murphy said.

At Jerome, Hansen said to bring inflation under control will require a tight lid on government spending and increased production to relieve shortages.

He said the single most important element needed to cope with inflation and other economic problems "is a confidence in our leadership and in the basic strength of our system."

People's party 'used'

BOISE (UPI) — A former Idaho Peoples Party chairman questioned the secretary of state Monday for putting his party on this year's election ballot.

Jon T. Robertson, Boise, said he felt that his party was being used as a "puppet" to create the opportunity to pull in public funds involved with printing up ballots for a party with no listed candidates.

Chief Deputy Secretary of State Jerry Hill said last week that the "Idaho Peoples Party" would appear on the primary election ballots and Idaho without listing a single candidate.

Hill had said cost of placing the party on the ballots would be considerable.

Robertson said that placing the party on the ballots "suggests that access of minor parties to ballot statistics is made difficult enough to ensure that the taxpayers' hard-earned money would be more appropriately spent in other areas."

He said that last spring it was agreed with the secretary of state's office that his party could be left off the ballot for the primary election to save taxpayers' money. He said that he was told at that time that the Idaho Peoples Party would definitely be left off the primary ballot.

"I hope the public raised hell about this blatant waste of their money in a time of economic crisis in this country," he said.

Robertson said that he had faith in the American people to make the right decision once they have all the facts.

But at least one Republican wasn't as optimistic.

"This absolutely eliminates him from any consideration as a presidential candidate, even if he is exempted," said Harris County-Holston Republican Chairwoman Nancy Palm.

Unfortunately, an indictment in the public eye is tantamount to conviction.

"A spokesman for Connally's law firm said he was outraged at the indictment."

resortee I have. I will win because the right I have no place other than what I have had.

Connally served three terms as governor of Texas and was one of the "most popular" Democrats in the state.

He joined the Republican Party in the spring of 1973 after heading Democrats for Nixon campaign during the 1972 election.

After his party switch, he was considered one of the leading candidates for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination.

"I don't know that I ever had any chances for the nomination, but this sure hasn't helped, then any."

He said Monday, "But let's wait and see."

Connally vows to fight charge

HOUSTON (UPI) — Former Texas Governor John B. Connally, indicted on charges of accepting $10,000 in bribes and lying to a grand jury about it, stood at the door of his spacious "ranch" in Floresville, Tex., Monday, and vowed to fight the charges "with every resource I have."

Connally was at his ranch in Floresville, Tex., Monday morning when he was told of the indictment. He returned to his home in Houston, where he is a partner in the law firm of Vinson, Elkins, Scars, Connally and Smith.

"I again deny that I am guilty of any wrongdoing and I am confident that I will be completely vindicated on these charges," the silver-haired former Texas governor said.

"I'll fight this with every resource I have."

Connally 57, was charged with two counts of accepting bribes to influence a 1971 increase in milk price supports, one count of conspiracy to commit perjury and obstruct justice, and one count of making false declarations before the grand jury.

The charges carry a maximum penalty of 19 years in prison and $50,000 in fines.

Deposed aide vows return

LONDON (UPI) — Deposed Cypriot President Makarios arrived in London today after talks in Washington and said nothing could prevent him from returning to the embattled island republic.

Makarios flew in from his second round of negotiations in eight days with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

He said Makarios returned to London on a "private visit," but it went Roy Hattersley, Minister of State, to greet him on behalf of the British government.

Makarios told newsmen he was disappointed the United Nations did not halt Turkish invasion forces on Cyprus from expanding their territory and urged it to take firm action against Ankara.

Asked if he planned to return to Cyprus, and if he would restore democracy there, Makarios replied, "I am the elected leader and I am the President of Cyprus and nothing can prevent me from returning to Cyprus."

But he said he did not want to return there as long as Greek officers that he charged organized his overthrow were still on the island.

Fighting continues in Beirut

By United Press International

Palestinian guerrillas using mortars, rockets and grenades battled on the outskirts of Beirut today, with Lebanese rightists demanding an end to commando control over refugee camps.

Witnesses said fresh fighting broke out in the southern suburb of Dikwaneh after a night of guerrilla-rightist clashes in which at least three persons were injured. The fighting continued through the morning.

Lebanese army and police units were sent to the area, located near the Tel El-Zaitar refugee camp in an effort to contain the fighting, witnesses said.

One guerrilla was killed and a rightist was seriously wounded, said Saturday in clashes between the commandos and members of Lebanon's Phalangist political party.

Phalangists claim guerrilla control over Palestinian refugee camps violates Lebanon's sovereignty. The party wants the camps to be brought under Phalangist control, a Lebanese security force.

In Tel Aviv, Israel warned of a possible new Middle East war this year and warned the threat of a strike if the Arabs set the stage for a conflict.

Reporter sentenced and fined

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Reporter William Farr, central figure in one of longest and most celebrated U.S. press-judiciary clashes, was sentenced to the maximum five days in jail and fined $500 Monday by Superior Court Judge Charles Older.

Older intimated that he could not make the sentence harsher.

The judge, passing sentence, said that "No man has the right to hold himself above the law and that is precisely what Mr. Farr is doing in this case. Mr. Farr will not be rewarded for his conduct in this court."

In my view, the circumstances of this case deserve a much more severe sentence, were it within the power of the court to impose it," the judge said. Farr and Older have been involved for more than a year in a struggle that pits a right of judges — to impose gag orders to protect the impartiality of jurors — against a journalistic ethic that says newsmen must reveal the identities of those who give him information in confidence.

Farr has refused throughout that they reveal the names of two lawyers who broke Older's gag order by giving Farr information for a story during the trial of the Sharon Tate murders.

House panel calls for impeachment for office, citizen rights abuse

"I think that when the chief executive of a country starts to investigate private citizens who criticize his policies, or authorizes his subordinates to do such things, the rights of the citizens that would wind up our constitutional freedoms can be heard. And it is against this right that we should awake and say, 'No!'"

The impeachment article adopted Monday:

Accused Nixon of trying to use income tax information for political ends and to harass "enemies" with tax audits. Opponents pointed out that such audits were conducted because IRS commissioners—appointed by Nixon—objected to charges Nixon ordered wiretaps with national security purpose, in violation of the law written by the Judiciary Committee in 1968. It requires the attorney general's approval even for wiretaps undertaken to prevent foreign attack on revolution.

Condemned Nixon's creation of the "plumbers" and their break-in to find damaging facts about Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg as wrong, and impeachable.

Claimed Nixon impeded lawful investigations in five areas: the Watergate break-in, the "cover-up," the Richard Kleindienst nomination, the bugging of private citizens and the Ellsberg break-in.

"Alleged he 'knowingly' misused the FBI, CIA and Justice Department, and interfered with Archibald Cox, who was fired as special prosecutor for suing for access to Nixon's tapes."

At Monday's hearing, no mention was made of another blow to Nixon's defense—the indictment on charges of bribery, perjury and obstruction of justice by former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr., whom Nixon once described as one of the most admirable men in America.

Connally became the fourth former Nixon cabinet officer charged with wrongdoing. He declared: "I will be completely vindicated of these charges."

The House Rules Committee was meeting today to decide whether the House impeachment articles expected to start in about two weeks should be subject to a filibuster in the Senate.

Television is usually forbidden in the House. If the House impeaches, the Senate trial is expected to be televised under rules which would permit cameras to focus only on the defense, the prosecution and witnesses; not to pass over the whole Senate chamber.

In Monday's televised debate, McClary said he supported impeachment for the first time because Nixon had failed to carry out duties required of him by the Constitution.

He said he acted without conscience, and assumed "no will thoughts or conduct by the President."

Joining McClary and the 21 Democrats in voting for impeachment were these Republicans—Thomas Railsback, Ill.; Hamilton Fish Jr., N.Y.; Lawrence J. Hogan, Md.; M. Caldwell Butler, Va.; Harold W. Froelich, Wis.; and Cohen.

Rep. George Danielson, Calif., in an opening speech for the Democrats, challenged the argument that an impeachment offense had to be an act outlawed by specific statute.

"The offenses charged against the President in this article are uniquely presidential offenses," he said.

"You or I, the most lowly citizen, can violate any of the statutes of our criminal code. But only the President can violate the oath of office to the President. Only the President can abuse the powers of the office of the President."

Other highlights of the debate:

Wiggins said the Democrats had failed to prove that the President was personally guilty. "You can't impeach vicariously," he argued.

Rep. David Z. Dennis, R-Ind., making the same argument, said the proposed impeachment article implied Nixon could be impeached "for actions by his subordinates conducted without his knowledge. I presume, in violation of his orders." He disagreed.

Disputing Dennis, McClary said: "We're charging here that the President has responsibility to see that the laws are executed... He tolerated this kind of conduct in the White House, that is the charge we're making."

Rep. Charles W. Sordman Jr., R-N.J., told the Democrats: "Somebody may have a Democratic president. Do you want him to have to live up to all these new laws you are writing?"

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., founded on wiretaps. Said Edgar Hoover, over two years, sent the President 10 summaries of wiretapped conversations, yet no news leakers were found. "Nobody went to jail, nobody was charged, nobody was convicted," he said.

A political effort to commercialize anti-intellectualism, article by Clark M. Clifford, who had been Defense Secretary under President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Rep. Joseph J. Moynihan, R-N.J., defended the wiretapping as essential—to stop leaks damaging to the national security. If Nixon had not acted to stop leaks, he said, "I for one would not vote to impeach for failure to do so."

Text of impeachment Article II

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Text of Impeachment Article II, adopted by the House Judiciary Committee Monday night recommending that President Nixon be removed from office for abuse of presidential powers.

"Using the powers of the office of President of the United States," Richard M. Nixon, in violation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the office of President of the United States and to the best of his ability, to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, and in disregard of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has repeatedly engaged in conduct violating the constitutional rights of citizens, impairing the due and proper administration of justice and the conduct of lawful inquiries, contravening the laws governing agencies of the Executive Branch and the purpose of these laws.

This conduct has included one or more of the following:

1) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, endeavored to obstruct the free and lawful functioning of the Executive Branch, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, income tax audits or other income tax investigations to be initiated or conducted in a discriminatory manner;

2) He misused the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and other executive personnel, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, by directing or authorizing such agencies or personnel to conduct or continue electronic surveillance or other investigation, for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or another lawful function of his office. He did direct, authorize, or permit the use of information obtained thereby, for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office. And he did direct the containment of certain records made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of electronic surveillance.

3) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, authorized and permitted to be maintained, through his subordinates and agents, within the office of the President, financed in part from money derived from campaign contributions, which unlawfully utilized the resources of certain records made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, engaged in covert and unlawful activities and attempted to prejudice the constitutional right of an accused to a fair trial.

4) He has failed to take care that the laws were faithfully executed, by failing to act when he knew or had reason to know that his subordinates endeavored to impede and frustrate lawful inquiries by duly constituted executive, judicial and legislative entities, concerning unlawful entry into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee and its cover-up, and other unlawful activities, including those relating to the confrontation of Richard Kleindienst as attorney general of the United States; electronic surveillance of private citizens, the break-in into the office of Lewis F. Richardson, and the campaign financing practices of the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

5) In disregard of the rule of law, he knowingly misused the executive powers, by interfering with agencies of the Executive Branch, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Criminal Division, and the office of Watergate special prosecution force, and the Central Intelligence Agency, in violation of his duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

"In all of this, Richard M. Nixon has acted in a manner contrary to his duty as President and subversive of constitutional government, to the great prejudice to the cause of law and justice, and to the manifest injury of the people of the United States. Wherefore, Richard M. Nixon, by such conduct, warrants impeachment, trial and removal from office."

No new home information

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House Judiciary Committee staff report on President Nixon's Florida and California homes cites no specific evidence the Nixon-approved improvements to the properties made at taxpayers' expense.

The report, released Monday, produced no new information on improvements to Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla., properties, but relied on previously published reports by the General Services Administration, Congress' Joint Committee on Taxation and a House government operations subcommittee.

The House subcommittee had determined that a total of $17 million was spent by the federal government on the properties.

Some of the expenditures have been criticized on grounds that they were not justified for purposes of protecting the president or were expenses any homeowner normally would be expected to incur.

The joint committee on taxation had said: "Nixon in effect realized $22,000 in income between 1969 and 1972 as a result of the improvements."

The Judiciary Committee report said Nixon visited both properties before certain major improvements were made—and at times discussed improvement plans, but it was short on any factual evidence that Nixon knew, approved of or secondarily of improvements to the properties made by the federal government.

It included a previously released transcript of a conversation between Nixon and his then-cousin, John W. Dean III, which took place more than a year before the joint tax committee's investigation.

The transcript indicated Nixon was concerned that private records of his personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, concerning San Clemente were being kept.

"President: They can't get his (Kalmbach's) records with regard to his private transactions."

"Dean: No—that's privileged."

"President: That's right."

"Dean: Anything to do with San Clemente and the like—did he say so far out of bounds?"

"President: Yeah. Did they ask for that?"

"Dean: No, no—No indication."

"President: Good. Oh, well, even if it is unimpeachable."

Cambodia bombing hidden

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A report issued Monday by the House Judiciary Committee staff showed that President Nixon and defense officials repeatedly lied or concealed the truth about the bombing of Cambodia between 1969 and 1972.

The 80-page report listed in false reports on the bombing the administration had given to Congress.

The report revealed nothing new about the actual conduct of the bombing, which began secretly on March 18, 1969, and continued until Aug. 15, 1973.

What it did show was the systematic pattern through which the bombing was concealed from Congress.

Nixon was personally cited only once in the document. Other officials named as having concealed the truth were former Defense Secretaries Melvin R. Laird and Elliot R. Richardson, former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, and former members and chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, including Gen. John D. McConnell, Earle G. Wheeler, John D. Ryan, and Adm. Thomas H. Moorer.

Roll-call vote

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The 28-10 roll call vote by which the House Judiciary Committee approved Monday night an article recommending impeachment of President Nixon on grounds of abuse of power.

For the article 28: Democrats—Donohue, Brooks, Kastenmeier, Edwards, Hungate, Conyers, Ellberg, Walde, Flowers, Mann, Sarbanes, Selbinger, Danielson, Drinan, Rangel, Jordan, Thornton, Holtzman, Owens, Meekins, Rosten—Republicans—Butler, Cohen, Fish, Froelich, Hogan, McClary, Railsback.

Against the article 10—Democrats—Norton, Rep. James J. Flaherty, Richardson, Latta, Lott, Maraziti, Mayne, Moorhead, Sandman, Smith, Wiggins.

Routine unchanged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The routine issue hasn't dampened the House Judiciary Committee's routine investigation regarding the bombing of Cambodia.

While the House Judiciary Committee considered impeachment charges against President Nixon Monday, an Agriculture Department press aide distributed a news release announcing that "crossbred pigs with Yorkshire dams and Duroc sires, produced significantly better carcass composition than those with Duroc dams and Yorkshire sires."

The Pentagon announced the award of a $5.8 million contract for a navigation channel near

House staff report scores impoundment

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A president could be impeached for refusing to spend funds appropriated by Congress, a House Judiciary Committee staff report says.

But the report indicates doubts "whether" such "impoundment" of funds should be included in impeachment articles against President Nixon.

The report, released Monday, cited figures showing the President had refused to spend some $10 billion in appropriated funds for programs he didn't like as of April of this year.

The programs included water-pollution control, highways, housing, and agriculture.

But it noted that those who don't impound money have a remedy in court.

It said courts have invalidated many of President Nixon's impoundments, and that the administration has obeyed final court decrees directing the release of impounded funds.

Also, the staff report noted, Congress has often relied against impoundment short of impeachment.

It already requires reporting of frozen funds; it could include language in bills specifically requiring that all or a percentage of the money be spent; it could make programs the President wants contingent on unfreezing of funds in other areas.

The committee staff did not include impoundment in its original draft articles of impeachment, but some members indicated they might raise it in debate.

Despite its qualifications, the staff report said for the record: "An unjustified, sustained and deliberate refusal by or failure of the executive branch to carry out spending statutes enacted by Congress may be said to represent grounds for impeachment and removal of the President from office, because in those circumstances the chief executive is exercising functions assigned to the Congress by the Constitution and not to him."

Horoscope

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Delays and obstacles may keep you from gaining the progress you planned, but later there is a good chance you will be able to make up for lost time if you continue your efforts into the evening hours when conditions improve.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Taking risks where career or credit matters are concerned could mean quite a loss to you today. Do work conscientiously. Then have a fine time in p.m. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Get added data before putting good ideas in operation. Listen to views of a new acquaintance which seem fantastic during day, but clarify themselves by evening. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't waste time handling any responsibilities you have, or you could get into serious trouble. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Beware of a sudden change into a fatal line—new wave of fortune.

Don't fight with mate. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Keep promise made during day. Don't be too critical of some public affair that may come up suddenly. Better understanding comes in p.m. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A co-worker may be rather forceful, but go along with ideas, since they are good. Then take it easy tonight. Plan how to improve appearance, clothing, etc. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Improve your system for efficiency and added income. Don't talk back to mate who is irritable. Out for good time tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Avoid arguments at home which could turn into a battle royal. Then the evening can be happy for concentrating there. Labor at whatever will add to present security. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be careful in motion of any kind during day, including driving. Enjoy recreation with congenial tonight. Business reports are extremely important. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): By following suggestions of experts in business, you can make your life more affluent with a bit of extra effort. Don't be too independent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You may feel quite depressed because things are not going quite right for you; but by evening all starts to turn in the opposite direction. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You are worried during the day, but don't lose your temper and by evening all starts to smooth out nicely. Improve your health and all looks brighter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A friend can be disappointing during day, but then comes through just fine with help in p.m. The social is not right for you during day, but in evening is ideal.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be literally born discontented, inclined to fight over every little thing, so teach early to be harmonious with others and give the right spiritual training as well as the proper diet. The life becomes serene and successful and the happiness desired will be achieved, also a happy marriage. The nature is definitely a practical one, so don't try to turn your child into a parlor fly.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

When President Andrew Jackson bought 20 deluxe spittoons at $12.50 each for the White House, he was criticized mightily. This was a personal extravagance, said his detractors. He just wanted to gussy up the place for the 1832 wedding of his niece Mary Easton to Lucius J. Polk. However, one Jackson defender explained that every president who enters the White House has great expectations: "and no impeachment proceedings" were instigated.

TWICE as many women as men use tranquilizers. Or so the surveytakers say. Also noteworthy, they say, is the predictable fact that the greatest users are mothers of numerous small children.

WHY ARE long lemons juicier than round lemons?

FIRST CHILD

Q: "How long is it on the average after the couple gets married that their first child is born?"

A: About a year and a half. That's among brides and grooms over age 18.

IT'S SAID no other human interest story is as universally printed in newspapers worldwide as the typical tale of the family cat that found its way home from hundreds of miles away. Said yarn reportedly has been front-paged in the dailies of just about every language.

WHEREABOUTS of the world's busiest nudist resort remains in contention. Some credit Ross Lawn, Ind., with that distinction. As many as 9,000 clients some days are said to show up to show all on that 386 acres.

SAINT BERNARD

The Saint Bernard dog of the Alps was pretty nifty in the rescue of lost climbers. That's widely known. But how could it see in those blinding blizzards? And how could it follow a scent over new-fallen snow? So inquires a client, it couldn't. Not well, anyway, it relied on its ears, mostly. That dog's hearing is sensitive beyond belief.

STARGAZERS insist the Sagittarian tends to have a green thumb.

IT WAS NOT widely publicized during World War II that as many Frenchmen volunteered for the German Waffen SS as joined the Fighting Free French division.

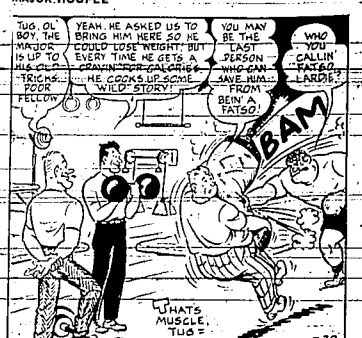

THOSE FISHERMEN, who bury the fishhook in the bait so the fish can't see the barb, err. No fish can recognize a fishhook. Besides, an exposed point snags better. Such is the claim of an experienced angler. Will you buy it?

Pregnant women epitome of chic in this year's roomy styles

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO. — A pregnant woman can be the epitome of chic this year.

The big, roomy styles she needs to accommodate her expanding figure are being touted as the important new look in fashion today.

So the expectant mother doesn't have to feel depressed when she starts bursting the seams of her body-clinging clothes. She can switch to the fashionable loose look. There is plenty of fullness in maternity styles for summer. It's just a matter of finding the styling and the price that appeals to her.

According to Betty Berman of the Maternity Modes Shops, women who aren't pregnant have been coming in to buy roomy tops. "The maternity tops are longer than regular styles because they're made to cover an expanded stomach," Mrs. Berman says.

She says most of her customers want styles that don't make them look obviously pregnant during the first few months. So the trick is to find clothes that will fit well at three months and then will continue to fit during the duration of their pregnancy.

"They come in and say they're not exactly ready for maternity styles, but their regular clothes don't fit them anymore, so they have to have something," says Mrs. Berman.

Elastic shirring on the bodice or midriff, stretchable raised waistbands and sashes are among the ways of contending with the expansion problem. The tent dress, for instance, can be controlled with a sash for several months. It can be placed at the natural waistline at first, moved under the bosom later and then left off toward the end of the pregnancy.

"We've found that many of our customers like the sash stitched in at the raised waist in front and tied in back so the fullness can be let out gradually.

Told that one of the major complaints we get about fashion from pregnant women is the "concentration of maternity firms on styles with a girly look and not enough sophistication for the over-25 set, Mrs. Berman said,

"majority" of our customers are in their early 20s, so we have to stock clothes that appeal to them including jeans and T-shirts and funky 40s looks. But we also have shirt-dresses, wrap dresses, jumpers and other simple styles for women in their 30s."

While most of her day dresses are coming in from hemlines to the knee or covering it, she says that majority of her customers are shortening them to one, two or three inches above the knee.

To find unusual, maternity styles, Mrs. Berman periodically shops foreign markets. She recently brought back a group of hand-embroidered styles from the Greek island of Mykonos.
